

BROKEN FATE BY JENNIFER DERRICK:

Zeus gave her one simple job: Kill every human. Atropos—daughter of Zeus and the third goddess of Fate from Greek mythology—spends her eternal life snipping human lifelines when their mortal lives are over. As if being a killer doesn't make life miserable enough, she and her Fate-wielding sisters must live amongst the humans on Earth thanks to a long-running feud between their mother and Zeus. Living on Earth means they must mingle with the mortals, attend the local high school, and attempt to fit in—or at least not stand out too much.

Killing and mingling don't mix, which is why Atropos' number-one rule is to avoid all relationships with the humans. Caring for the people she has to kill is a fast track to insanity. However, when Alex Morgan walks into her first-period English class, she knows she's in for trouble. He's the worst kind of human for her to like—one with a rapidly approaching expiration date. And he makes Atropos want to break all the rules.

Title: BROKEN FATE

ISBN: 978-1-63422-165-8

Edition: Paperback, 280 pages

Author: Jennifer Derrick

Publication Date: April 18, 2016

Publisher: Clean Teen Publishing

Distributor: Midpoint

Price: $10.95

Marketing: Online publicity at CleanTeenPublishing.com, social media outreach, Goodreads giveaway, Goodreads advertising, virtual book and author tour, live author events.

Genre: JUVENILE FICTION / Legends, Myths, Fables / Greek & Roman

Age Suggestion: 13-18yrs

About the Author: Jennifer Derrick lives in North Carolina and, when not writing, can often be found reading, trawling the shelves at the library, playing board games, watching sports, camping, running marathons, and playing with her dog.

www.JenniferDerrick.com

Jennifer Derrick | JenDerrick@gmail.com